

THESE PEOPLE MAKE NEWS

When we went to the Chemistry lab to interview Frances Turner, the whole science faculty grouped around. "Have you come to ask me another one of those silly questions?" Frances groaned and continued, "What with Herty Day. I've not got the time to think about any questions. I'm so worn out, I can't even think. In fact I couldn't even give you my philosophy of life 'cause you know if you're awfully busy a philosophy of life isn't at all necessary and you never know you haven't got one until it is all over but the shouting."

Frances Turner

"Why of course, I've got a statement to make for the press." Dr. Boesen was horrified when he was told that his picture would be in The Colonnade. "You can say for me that there is supposed to be some professional courtesy among newspapermen, thieves and even photographers. It's a dirty deal not to let me know until it is too late to leave town."

It seems that this was a very, very, bad week for interviews. When we called Nellie Butler she was steaming herself in the tub and didn't think much of the interviewer for disturbing that important process. "Responsibilities? Why, they don't weigh heavily on me at all. When I know I've just got to do something I go on and do it, then it is over with and my conscience is clear again." That little remark set us to thinking about the long gone past deadline and the irate editor so we scurried on to write this tripe and "clear our conscience."

120 Guests at Science Academy; Award Presented to Cameron

Hudson, Collar Attend Florida Student Meet

Harriet Hudson, president of CGA, and Virginia Collar, sophomore representative to Student Council, left Thursday to attend the Florida Student Government Association convention in Gainesville, Florida. Although the convention has formerly included Florida colleges and universities only, this year colleges in surrounding states have been invited to send delegates also.

Similar to the Charleston convention held April 20-22, the conference in Gainesville is a Joint convention of the Florida Intercollegiate Press Association (twentieth meeting) and the Florida Student Government Association (fourteenth meeting). It began at ten o'clock Friday morning and closed Saturday afternoon. The main program of the convention was based on open forum discussions, with student speakers or discussion leaders. 300 Place Pine Wreath on Herty's Grave in Tribute

Three hundred visitors participated in the opening activity of the Herty Day program here this afternoon. Joining with the Georgia Academy of Science group, they visited the cemetery and, as a tribute to Dr. Charles H. Herty, placed a Georgia pine wreath on his grave.

The Chemistry Club, sponsors of this seventh annual celebration of Herty Day, entertained the visitors and GSCW faculty at four o'clock with a tea at "West-over," home of Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Lindsley.

Continuing the activities tonight, Dr. and Mrs. Guy H. Wells will be hosts at a dinner in the Banquet Hall of the old Executive Mansion. Following this will be the presentation of the Herty award in the Russell auditorium and an address by Dr. Frank K. Cameron, winner of the medal. Dr. Cameron, a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina, merited this award because of his outstanding work in agriculture and with the cellulose

Panke Knox Is New Managing Editor '39-'40

A two vote margin placed Panke Knox into the office of managing editor of the Colonnade at a staff meeting Thursday afternoon. This election followed the resignation of Catherine Cavanaugh, named managing editor at the regular staff elections last month. Catherine resigned her position on the Colonnade as editor of the Spectrum for the next school year.

Running against Panke were Aliene Fountain and America Smith, who tied—two votes behind the winning candidate. Since Panke already held the Photographic editor's position on the paper, she will appoint her assistant to help her do this photographic work, since at present, there is no one trained to do all of it.

Panke is the daughter of Professor W. T. Knox, of the education department, and lives in Milledgeville. She is Secretary of

Scientists Gather to Hear Problems of Science Discussed

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Georgia Academy of Science convened here Friday when graduate students of science met to read their theses on pertinent questions of science and to hold executive meetings. The meeting was being sponsored by the Departments of Science, Chemistry, Biology, and Physics, and was held in conjunction with Herty Day, May 6, for the first time.

There were about 120 members of the Academy, three of whom are members of the GSCW faculty, Dr. Euribelle Bolton, Dr. L. C. Lindsey, and Dr. James Stokes.

Beginning with an executive meeting at which Dr. G. C. White presided, the group held meetings to hear the reading of papers and theses on subjects of scientific interest from 11 a. m. throughout the afternoon. Supper was served the members at Lake Laurel, at 6:30, after which Dr. Guy H. Wells, welcomed the visitors. Professor J. L. Daniel, of Georgia School of Technology, retiring president of the Academy, spoke.

U. of Ga., Wesleyan, Agnes Scott Guests Don Dirndls and Dance at Festival

Gay costumes in reds, greens, and yellows, villagers gathered on the village green, music of fiddles in the waltzes, and mazurkas, and there you have not a medieval Fair day on the Continent, but its direct descendant, the Folk Dance Festival to be held here Tuesday, May 9th at 5 o'clock on the green in front of Parks Hall.

The entire college and town people are invited to participate in the festival. Guests are to include Agnes Scott, Wesleyan, and University of Georgia delegates who will take an active part in the exhibitions. The Folk dance club, the Seventh grade of Peabody, and the Folk dance class will present special dance numbers. Everyone is invited to attend and to participate in the dancing. The purpose is to create

What Price Service?

Recently a very feasible and seemingly very workable plan was formulated by a few students who realized a need for some way of stabilizing and assuring budgets to the three major organizations and the publications. This plan included a small fee, not over a dollar a quarter, to be paid when the student matriculated. Since then something in the nature of a shelving has happened to the proposal. Perhaps from not altogether altruistic reasons, the Colonnade is interested in seeing such a measure carried through.

To anyone who has worked on any of the publications or the major organizations it is accepted that they are hampered considerably by the lack of funds, and that if there was more money—assured—every year, that the various organizations could serve the students much more effectively. At the present, time and energy are spent trying to meet budgets too skimpy or to secure advertising for publications when there is no college budget that should be spent on actual production of services or editions.

In publications especially it is true, that the work of these staffs represents the college to all who come into contact with the publications. They may be either splendid advertisements or on the contrary, and the ordinary person rarely takes into consideration the fact that the staff may work under a serious monetary handicap. All the school publications now have a rather wide circulation outside of the school and so it would seem advisable to present as good a front as possible to these prospective supporters of the institution.

Very often, also, there is no set budget on which the organization can depend, which makes any planning of a year's work extremely difficult.

A dollar is an unusually small amount considering that most schools have fees of five to fifteen dollars, and we feel that most students would prefer to pay all their dues this way rather than have to pay dormitory dues, student dues, YWCA pledges, etc., throughout the year at inconvenient times.

The Editor Comments

Of course we are a spanking new editorial staff. None of us are quite dry behind the ears, but we're enthusiastic and are willing to try hard in this, our job for next year.

There have been two outstanding precedents set for us—and we're likely to find it difficult to keep up the standards. Lucy Caldwell, in '37 and '38, acquired the Cobb County Times trophy for the G. S. C. W. paper as a reward for outstanding editorial accomplishments. Betty Donaldson, retiring editor, has placed the Colonnade among the most important college publications.

Which indicates that the present staff will have to keep up on its collective toes to equal—not to mention surpass—either or both of these records.

Congratulations from the Colonnade to the Y. W. C. A. for your Charity Ball effort to bring over a foreign student to G. S. C. W. This is a truly worthy motive and you deserve all the success you received at the dance last night.

Orchids to Catherine Cavanaugh for her gripping short story which was published in the last issue of the Corinthian. We've heard Catherine laugh and mention the times she's been credited with the work of Katherine Cavanaugh, the playwright. At this rate, our Catherine is likely to become as celebrated in her own right as the other Cavanaugh.

Vote for Week-ends

A golden opportunity presents itself to the students, who, it is fervently hoped, will take it by the forelock. As announced elsewhere in the paper, the executive committee is presenting a plan for home-going week-ends to the student body soon to be voted upon. The plan includes both a choice of a week-end and a Thanksgiving holiday.

For the past several years, about two weeks before Thanksgiving, the students suddenly decide that they want to go home, and petitions, mobs, and a general unpleasantness occurs. Here at last, is a chance to clear up the whole situation beforehand.

Whether we want one plan or the other, it is important that we decide now, be present to vote on the question, and then abide by the decision, as we render it. Perhaps in this way there need be no question or furor next year when the holidays begin—or don't, as the case may be.

Why Not Attend Recitals?

Music students after years of hard work and concentrated effort, are allowed to present a public recital of their skill. And it is likewise with the dramatic students. They struggle under stern instructions and pour their whole souls into their work. They schedule a recital in the auditorium and what happens?

A mere handful of close friends attend the function. They huddle together in a microscopic group and applaud weakly after each number.

And what of the performer? She stands—or sits—on the brightly lighted stage. She looks out at a vast auditorium crowded with empty seats. A few pale faces smile up at her but the great number of vacant chairs leers at her mockingly.

Why not plan to attend a few recitals? If each G. S. C. W. student would arrange to hear three recitals, a comfortably assuring audience would be guaranteed to the girls striving for recognition.

Think—put yourself in a Senior's place. How would you like an auditorium of empty seats echoing your words hollowly and sneering at your every effort?

Letter To The Editor

Parent's Day Not Dropped

Dear Editor:

Parents' Day has not been abolished. The Granddaughters Club and the Alumnae Association agree with the Junior whose letter appeared in your columns, last week, in that they are convinced that the Day is a worthwhile annual occasion and one that well may become an institutional tradition.

The Junior has, however, evidently been misinformed. It was found necessary to postpone this year's observance of the day because of a crowded spring calendar, the change in home-going week-ends, and an unusually grave financial crisis. It is the hope and expectation that hereafter Parents' Day will be written into the official calendar of the College so that plans may be made early and provisions for the occasion included in the yearly programs of the Granddaughters Club and the Alumnae Association.

Every activity and every medium by which may be strengthened the friendly relations of GSCW officials, faculty members, and students with the public should receive the hearty support of all of us. Those of us who are in any way connected with Parents' Day sincerely appreciate the interest in the movement shown by "the Junior" and assure her that we do not contemplate abandoning it at all. There seemed no happy alternative this year, to postponing it.

I, for one, should be glad to know what season of the year the students consider best for Parents' Day and shall welcome constructive suggestions about the matter.

I should like to express here my personal appreciation of the excellent spirit demonstrated and the fine work done, this year, by Carol Pryor and the Granddaughters Club. I regret, with them, that it did not seem feasible to attempt the annual Parents' Day, this spring.

MARGARET MEADERS,
Alumnae Secretary.

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"If we should accept the criterion of the number of employment opportunities that require college training and limit our enrollments in colleges to this number, we should thereby have to reduce our college enrollments to about one-half or possibly one-third of their present size. The democratic alternative is to admit all youth into high school and college who have ability and character and to recognize that such training may have values for our democracy wholly apart from its contribution to the enhancement of one's earning power and economic status." University of Texas' Pres. Homer P. Rainey maintains that college education should be more than job-training.

"One of the most common assumptions about education is that it must take its color from its environment, and serve those wants on which society is most acutely conscious at the moment. If this were really true, there would be no reason to speak of a liberal education today, for the contemporary world is not organized around forces directed toward freedom." Brown University's Pres. Henry M. Wriston believes that "when the state is supreme, liberal education is impossible."

"Now what is a cultured man? I would say a cultured man is one who sees things in their perspective, who has a sense of relative values of things and men, who is able to separate the true from the false, and who possesses those qualities that make a well-balanced mind." Pres. William O. Hotchkiss of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute re-defines what U. S. colleges and universities should produce.

Plans for Fall Week-ends To Be Presented Students

The faculty-student relations committee will present a plan for the fall week-ends to the students in chapel soon. The decision of the students will be incorporated in the social calendar for the Fall quarter. The plans are:

(1) One short week-end beginning after the last class on Friday and extending until Sunday night at 9:30, with a long Thanksgiving holiday, beginning Wednesday after the last class and extending until Sunday night at 9:30.

(2) Two short week-ends (time as above) and a short Thanksgiving holiday, from Wednesday after the last class to Thursday at 9:30 p.m., or a long week-end, extending from the last class Friday to Monday at 9:30 p.m. and a short Thanksgiving holiday.

There are two choices. If the last plan is chosen, the student chooses whether she wants the two short week-ends and short Thanksgiving, or a long week-end and a short Thanksgiving.

It is sincerely hoped that all the students will take advantage of the opportunity to clarify their home-going week-end difficulties. This has been a problem for many years and now that it is possible to attain the goal for which we have been working, it should be gratefully received.

Verse-Speaking Choir on GSC Radio Hour

The Verse Speaking Choir of the Peabody High School will be featured on the GSCW radio program Saturday May 6. This choir is composed of thirty Peabody students and is directed by Miss Mary Thomas Maxwell. Since the change in Atlanta time has taken place, those interested will do well to read the Saturday WSB program which will appear in the Journal Friday afternoon to be sure when to tune in.

The Choir will give these numbers;

Twenty-fourth psalm. Prayer—by an Old English Monk. Spin, Lassie, Spin. Lullaby—James Hillier. Congo—Vachel Lindsay.

The program will be directed by Nelle Womack Hines who will give the High Lights at GSCW and tell of the U. D. C. Pilgrimage on Thursday, May 11.

Charity Ball Nets $175; Bell Annex Wins Ticket Sale

Betty Knox Opens Series of Senior Music Recitals

Betty Knox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Knox, will give her senior piano recital in the Richard Russell auditorium Tuesday May 9, at 8:15. She will be assisted by Harriette Chick, mezzo-soprano, and Lou Ella Meaders, accompanist.

Miss Knox studied music at Shorter College for two years before transferring to GSCW, and since she has been here she has been the pupil of Miss Pittard.

Her program will include the following selections: Harmonious Impromptu in A flat, Schubert; Nocturne in E flat, Chopin; Prelude in G sharp Minor, Chopin. The last group consists of: Etude in C sharp minor, Scriabine; Caprice Burlesque, Gabilowitsch; Barcarolle, Debussy; Malaguena, Lecuona.

Harriette Chick's program will be given after Betty's second group of compositions and will consist of: Elizabeth's Prayer from Tannhauser, Wagner; My Star, Beach; The White Swan, Hulten; I'm Wearing Awa' to the Land of the Dead, Foote.

BETTY KNOX

Pryor Elected President of Health Club

The Health Club held its meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Health department. Plans were made for a picnic to be held next week, and also for the elections (Continued on Page Four)

With some of the returns still to come in, Cynthia Mallory, YWCA Secretary, announced late Friday afternoon that the Charity Ball had netted $180 and that she felt reasonably sure that the total proceeds would reach $175.

Bell Annex—the girls and their dates—were in the lead-out, winning in the sale of tickets with a total of 69 per cent of the girls in the dormitory buying tickets. Terrell A ran a close second in the contest with a total of 62 per cent. Mayfair was third with a sale of 50 per cent. The lead-out was immediately after the intermission.

The dance, with Gladys Williams' colored orchestra playing, included four no-breaks besides the lead-out. Coca Colas were sold on the Terrace, and the proceeds from this refreshment were also added to the funds for the refugee student's fees.

With the success of this dance, it seems extremely probable that it will be possible for the campus to bring a refugee student from Europe for the next school year. As was previously announced, the purpose of the ball was to raise funds for bringing a refugee from the Hitler regime to the GSCW campus for a year's school term. The transportation expenses of this student are to be paid by an organization which sponsors the placing of these young women and men of such places as Czechoslovakia, Austria, or Germany who have been ousted for political or religious reasons. The students of GSCW have only to raise the money to pay tuition and expenses here for the year.

Other schools throughout the country are carrying on similar projects at the present. For instance, the University of Georgia is attempting to bring four refugee students to its campus.

"OLD TIME MINSTREL SINGERS" WARM UP LITTLE CHARITY BALL

Not to be outdone by the bigger bugs, the girls of Terrell A, aided and abetted by Katherine Betts gave their own Little Charity Ball on third floor Wednesday night, charged a penny admission, and netted 60c, which went to the Y for the refugee student.

Even doing them one better, the Little Charity Ball featured a floor show—hill-billy singers specializing in "Red River Valley" and "It Makes No Difference Now," an acrobat, a musical trio (instruments consisting of 1st, 2nd, and 3rd combs), and strapless evening dress style-show. The dresses, shockingly enough, were not only sans straps, but sans anything from the waist up. Tch! Tch! but anything in the name of sweet charity!

Symphony Orchestra Begins Season's Tour, Home Concert May 11

Opening the concert season of the third year of the orchestra in its symphony proportions, the group, under the direction of Mr. Charles Meek, will go to Monticello for an evening concert Monday, May 8 and play in the Home Concert in the Russell auditorium, Thursday, May 11. On Friday night the orchestra plays in the city auditorium of Atlanta as one of the Music Week Concerts, sponsored by the Atlanta Alumna club and Saturday, May 13, broadcasts over WSB.

The Home Concert is at 8:30 in the auditorium and is free to all who wish to attend, no tickets are required for attendance.

The program is as follows: "Andante from the Surprise Symphony, Haydn; Romanza, from the Symphony No. 4, Schumann; The Unfinished Symphony, Schubert; Slavonic Dance, Dvorak; Dance of the Happy Spirits, Gluck; Overture Stradella, Elton; Air on the B String, for the String Section, Bach; Minuet, from the F Major Concerto, Handel; Andante Cantabile, for the string section, Tchaikovsky; Farandole, from the L'Arlésienne Suite, Bizet.

Members of the orchestra and their instruments are: Conductor, Charles Meek, Lorain, Ohio; Violins: Edith Dixon, Thomasville; Blanche Layton, Swainsboro;

The symphony orchestra caught in the act of rehearsing for the coming tours and the home concert May 11 in the Russell Auditorium. They will play in Atlanta May 12.

Reviews of Current Novels

Aliene Fountain, Literary Editor

No Stone Unturned

By PATRICK CARLETON
Reviewed By Aliene Fountain

Patrick Carleton turns from historical novels to modern people and manners in his latest book, "No Stone Unturned." The plot, which has to do with a mystery, is by no means solely responsible for the value of the book. Mr. Carleton presented several other sides to the story. For instance, he played up the humor of its amusing situations, almost making the book a comedy of manners. Also, he made his characters real and convincing. Each of them makes a very definite impression.

The characters in "No Stone Unturned" are assembled at Scragton, a little town in Derbyshire, which has fame as a health resort. The reader first meets some of the characters as they are on a train going to Scragton, and he learns the reason for their proposed stay at the town. The hotel wherein they stay is described by the author thusly:

"The Hotel Magnificent was a very tall, sad, double-fronted building of stone, set up in the middle of a wooden paled garden. . . Its eyes of windows were superciliously narrowed. . . it looked like a camel contemplating the Hundredth Name of God among a place of browsing goats."

One finds evidence of Mr. Carleton's wit, not only in his descriptions and narrations, but also in the provocative conversations of his characters, who are decidedly out of the ordinary run of people. This fact plus the good plot make "No Stone Unturned" highly entertaining.

G.S.C. Alumna Combines Sonnets, Sketches, Surgery

"Pygmalion", Rogers-Astaire On at Campus

By Sara Alma Giles

The colorful career of Vernon and Irene Castle, world-famous dance team of pre-war days starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers is presented in a picture called "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle." The struggles of the Castles to win recognition as dancers, their sudden fame and happiness, and Vernon's experience as a member of the Royal Flying Corps are all unfolded in the picture. Many popular songs of yesterday as well as the famous dance created by the Castles, are interpolated through the story.

Grimly gripping story of the New York police and of a father who must put a halt to the activities of his own son, "Sergeant Madden" will be seen Wednesday. Wallace Beery will play the leading role with Tom Brown, Alan Curtis, and Lorraine Johnson in supporting roles.

Thursday and Friday bring the screen-play of George Bernard Shaw, "Pygmalion," starring Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller. The story revolves about Harry Higgins, a professor of phonetics, who on a bet takes Eliza Doolittle, a drab flower seller out of the slums of London and trains her in social graces with the intentions of passing her off as a duchess at an ambassador's reception. His experiment is a complete success.

Saturday brings a double feature: "Whispering Enemies," with Jack Holt and Dolores Costello and "First Offenders," with Walter Abel and Beverly Roberts.

Faculty to Attend GSC LaGrange Meet

Miss Margaret Meaders, Miss Catherine Weaver, and other faculty members, will attend a meeting of the G. S. C. W. club of LaGrange, Ga., on Tuesday, May 9.

This meeting of the alumnae of LaGrange will be held at Camp Clifford Smith, a Boy Scout camp, a few miles out from LaGrange. Members of the Senior class of LaGrange High School will be guests at the meeting, which is to be conducted by Mrs. Horace Waller, formerly Miss Rachel O'Neal, who is the President of the LaGrange Alumni club.

Committees for the execution of the festival, which were selected from GSCW, are: Publicity, Helen Price, chairman, Louise Murphy; Chapel Program, Eleanor Peebles, chairman; Assistant general chairman, Dot Peacock; Pictures, Elizabeth Tatum.

A similar event was planned for last year which, however, was postponed because of bad weather for several times and finally given up. At that time also, other schools were invited to send delegates to participate in the festival. It is expected that the event will be a tremendous success this year. Come out and make it so!

The officers of the Health Club are Carol Pryor, president; Virginia Wyche, vice-president; Mary Grace O'Hara, secretary; and Margaret Sims, treasurer. Mrs. K. W. Wooten is the adviser of the club.

GSCW ALUMNA GETS IMPORTANT S. C. JOB

Sonnets and sketches and surgery may sound like a strange combination, but Marion Keith, GSCW '33, manages to fill her days with just such things.

When the Shriners Memorial Hospital in Greenville, S. C., recently needed an assistant superintendent of nurses and an anesthetist, the staff turned toward New York City for aid in filling the position. In the Neurological Institute in that city the answer to the Greenville hospital's needs was at that time specializing in brain work. She had received her R. N. from the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City and had later studied anesthesia and had received much experience in Presbyterian's various departments. The young lady's name was Marion Keith and she was a Southerner from Marietta, Ga. Not that that had anything to do with her selection, probably; but it didn't hurt.

So back to Dixie came Marion and with her, her two hobbies: sketching and writing. The latter, however, has acquired the status of something more than a hobby. Miss Keith has had an article on anesthesia published in the NATIONAL JOURNAL OF NURSING, and is a correspondent for "R. N.," nursing magazine. For some time she has been a regular staff member of the QUARTERLY MAGAZINE published by the Alumnae association of the Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing, and her poetry has been widely published.

It may seem strange—but balloons and blockprints and bandages really get along beautifully, when they are properly and skillfully mixed.

Stories by Scandal-light

Judging from the extensive cleaning program being carried out by all the science departments in Parks Hall, I would say off-hand that maybe the Georgia Academy of Science is going to meet here this week-end. And judging from the new hair-cuts among the science faculty and the chicken-with-its-head-chopped-off actions of these same I would again say off-hand that perhaps the Georgia Academy of Science is going to meet here this week-end. And now if I have succeeded in establishing in your what-minds (beat you to it) the picture of a clean aquarium in the Biology lab, a pneumatic trough of verberna in the Chemistry lab, and erased boards in all departments, I will proceed with my story.

Miss Martin was in the midst of the prodigious task of sleeping the visitors when word came that one of the Biology professors from Agnes Scott was bringing a friend. Naturally Miss Martin placed the two ladies together and thought no more of the matter until the day before when some life-saving soul informed her that the friend was a "he." Miss Chandler says that from all she can hear they must be planning for this to be a hot conference but I don't see why she should object to a minor error like that.

While we are still in the science department I might as well tell you something that happened in Freshman Biology several weeks ago. Miss Tait was trying to get someone to name the most common fungus growth, which, as all my intelligent readers know, is the mushroom. Getting no response she resorted to grade school tactics and attempted to stimulate their minds by a little example. She said, "When I went home at noon the maid was chopping up chicken; now, does that suggest anything to you?" Her answer was, "Hash." Maybe next time she should borrow her technique from kindergarten and get more on the level with her students. Julia Merle Stewart was teaching her class about squirrels and they were giving remarkable answers to her questions. She asked what the squirrels ate and they immediately replied, "Nuts," but imagine her consternation when in reply to her questions as to what they drank, she heard, "Coca Cola."

Perhaps her duties as a school marm are keeping her so busy that Julia Merle has been forced to neglect her domestic duties so religiously executed by the rest of us. At any rate, when several Manson girls slipped into her room to make her a pie-bed, the bed was so stacked with books and what not that they couldn't even come near it. Off-hand I would say that Stewart quite innocently turned the joke on them.

Dr. Dawson will wait until two minutes after the bell to make that one of the Biology professors from Agnes Scott was bringing a friend. Naturally Miss Martin placed the two ladies together and thought no more of the matter until the day before when some life-saving soul informed her that the friend was a "he." Miss Chandler says that from all she can hear they must be planning for this to be a hot conference but I don't see why she should object to a minor error like that.

While sitting on Arts porch, I overheard, one of our health-junged professors say to one of his students, "Miss so and so, you look like a yes woman, what would be your answer to this question?" Needless to say, we would all appreciate pre-answered questions, but would we appreciate the inference?

Dr. McGee really thinks he has this student body figured out. In speaking to his Spoken French class, he told them that one of the social necessities was the ability to express one's self. "For instance," he said, "freshmen are

BONE LEADS "Y" AT CAMP JOYCLIFF

By Marguerite Jernigan

The Student-Industrial Conference held at Camp Joycliff last week-end was most successful from every standpoint. Nine girls from G. S. C. W., two from Wesleyan, and fifteen from the Industrial Y of Macon were present. The program was built around the theme "How Can We Work For A Better World." Saturday night the Wesleyan students presented the "Trouble Spots" in the world. Sunday morning Josephine Bone led the discussion for G. S. C. W. on the causes of these "trouble spots." The Industrial Girls finished up the conference with their discussion on possible "cures" for these "trouble spots." To all who participated, it was a most pleasurable as well as profitable week-end.

By special request (of the students, of course) Miss Mary Burns had a return engagement with the Freshman Groups. She talked to them on the traditions of G. S. C. W. This was such an interesting talk that it is rumored that a petition is going around for her to give it in chapel.

Miss Neese led an excellent discussion in Sophomore Commission Tuesday night on the Fine Arts and everyday life. She placed special emphasis on the importance of speech.

The Marriage Group met last Wednesday night, and as usual, filled Parks 29 to overflowing. Mr. Massey continued his discussion of marriage.

Dr. Taylor met with the Economics and Labor discussion group last Thursday night. He talked on the "Resources of Georgia," and brought to mind many things which are often overlooked in connection with our fair state.

Tournament Week
The tournament has shown up the best softball of the year. The teams are out there to win, but this goal is a minor detail compared to the fun derived from playing.

In the first game, Jean Morris' freshman team won from Catherine Combs sophomore team, but the sophomores staged a comeback when Frances Wilkie's team took over Cornelia Lewis' junior team. The Seniors forfeited to the freshmen and Jean Morris' cohorts upheld their first victory when they squeezed a short lead on Mayo Aultman's freshman team.

To spur the batters on to greater efforts and harder hitting, Miss Colvin promised an ice cream cone, the flavor to be named by the recipient, to anyone who could hit Terrell from home base. With the heavy batting, she was in actual danger of having to make good her promise, but Doris Warnock, try as she might, failed to bat the necessary distance. Doris says there are other games and that she hasn't given up yet.

Don't forget the dormitory tournament that's to be started soon, and look around for a good captain to lead your team.

willingness in taking the girls out to the country club. The club course is quite an improvement over the Nesbit course.

Tennis Club

The tennis club is going to hold a mixed doubles tournament with the male members of the faculty. Those ought to be interesting matches to watch, but much more fun to be playing in. The faculty participants had better dust off their rackets and practice, for the tennis club members have been practicing every Thursday, from 4:00 to 8:00.

Cottillon

Cottillon Club is to give an exhibition on May 18, demonstrating the correct dancing techniques, the traditional dance steps and others such as rhumba and tango. The tryouts have already been held to determine the participants, and the club is extending an invitation to you to the exhibition which is to be held in the gymnasium.

Folk Dance

The Folk Festival will be held next Tuesday, and every one will be expected to join in, regardless of whether you've ever heard folk music before. You hear the music, it goes to your feet, and then you're dancing.

Wesleyan, Agnes Scott, and the University of Georgia are coming to take part, and we all want to be a part of it too.

Physical Education Majors

Guinea Pigs
Miss Andrews, in her weekly perusal of Time Magazine noticed an article to the effect that Knox Gelatine decreased muscle fatigue. Knowing that her 210 class of majors had a lot of activity, she decided to experiment with them. Now each major takes four packages of Gelatine a day, in liquid form. If you notice some unusually spry and energetic girls around the campus, just attribute it to the effects of Mr. Knox's gelatine.
